

Donald C. Hogue
Hogue & Associates

June 8, 2006

Federal Trade Commission/Office of the Secretary
Room H-135 (Annex W)
600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20580

Re: Business Opportunity Rule, R511993

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing to express strong opposition to the proposed Business Opportunity Rule R511993. I understand that the Federal Trade Commission must protect the public from "unfair and deceptive acts or practices," but the rule as proposed would make it very difficult for me to operate my business as a Shaklee Independent Distributor.

A confusing and burdensome section of the proposed rule is the seven-day waiting period to enroll new distributors. Most of the people who sign my Shaklee application are wishing to become consumers of the products and sign up to get a 15% discount as a member. If they later decide they want to build a business, and some do, all they must do is supply me with their Social Security Number or Tax Identification Number. No additional kit, fee or application is required. They do have the option to buy a Shaklee Member Kit which costs only $19.95.

This is far less than most consumer purchases, from TVs to all manner of household appliances, none of which require a waiting period. The waiting period is also unnecessary in that I already have through the Shaklee Corporation a 90% buyback policy for products, including the Member Kit, purchased by a distributor within the last two years.

The proposed rule requires the disclosure of a minimum of 10 prior purchasers nearest to the prospective purchaser. In this day of identity theft, I am very uncomfortable giving out the personal information of other Shaklee distributors, without their knowledge or consent. I understand that those who sign up after the rule takes effect would be told in writing "If you buy a business opportunity from the seller, your contact information can be disclosed in the future to other buyers."

This would dissuade new people from signing up as distributors as they are concerned not only about identity theft, but also about their privacy. Providing the 10 references also could damage my business as a Shaklee distributor. Lower ranking distributors often are involved in more than one direct selling company. Providing a list to a potential recruit, who may already be a distributor for a competing direct selling company, may be an invitation to solicit existing distributors for such other opportunity.

The 10 reference requirement is an administrative burden. To obtain the list of 10 prior purchasers, I will need to provide Shaklee Corporation with the prospective distributor's address, and wait to receive the list of the 10 nearest distributors who became distributors within the past three years. Each prospective recruit will need a customized disclosure statement. This will result in a delay far longer than seven calendar days before anyone can sign an application.

Many people enter my direct selling business to earn extra income for a specific goal, such as holiday purchases or a family vacation. The wait which the proposed rule creates may make the goal unattainable.

The proposed rule calls for the release of any information regarding lawsuits that allege misrepresentation, or unfair or deceptive practices over a 10-year period. It does not matter if the company was found innocent or not liable. It does not make sense to me that I would have to disclose these lawsuits unless Shaklee Corporation, or its officers, directors or sales department employees, had been found guilty or liable.

Fifty-year old companies such as Shaklee and my 10 years in the business would both be at a disadvantage compared to start-up companies, which may not yet have experienced litigation but are far more likely to have legal issues surrounding their opportunities.

I have never in my 10 years in business had a lawsuit or unfair practice charged against me. Would this rule require me to report some infractions that some other Shaklee distributor had with a customer that had no connection with me.

As I mentioned above I have been a Shaklee Distributor for more than 10 years. Originally, I became a Shaklee Distributor because I love the Company's nutritional, personal care, and household products and wanted to earn some additional income working from home. Now my spouse and I depend upon this extra income to supplement our budget.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,
Donald C. Hogue